Located in Harrods' storied Food Halls, The Truffle Shop will include starters, main courses and inventive desserts all available to-go. Often considered a luxury ingredient, a shop dedicated to truffles will likely appeal to affluent consumers seeking out interesting delicacies within Harrods.

Truffled out

Truffle, either shaved or as an oil, is immensely popular in fine-dining establishments and has found its way into everything from pasta dishes to french fries. Harrods has taken the sought-after ingredient and allowed it to take center stage in various dishes for the winter season.

The Truffle Shop offers consumers a menu of plates prepared with fresh wild truffles sourced from Italy and France. Appetizers, created by Harrods' chefs, include a seared scallop with truffled potato puree and creamy veloute and a whole baked black truffle, wrapped in bacon and puff pastry with truffle cream and Périgord sauce.

Main dishes include a seared Barbary duck breast with black-truffle risotto, cannelloni filled with veal ragout and truffle cheese fondue or wild mushrooms, ricotta and truffle cheese, layered with soft creamy polenta served with fried leeks and black-truffle shavings.

Desserts available include a black macaroon cookies sandwiching a truffle-infused dulce de leche as well as a panna cotta with white truffles and Champagne jelly.

For an at-home truffled treat, Harrods is offering diners a make-your-own-truffle-pasta kit for two.

Harrods often hosts culinary experiences within its Food Halls. For instance, the department store is currently hosting a five-month long culinary experience prepared by Michelin-starred chefs.

The pop-up dining experience will feature five chefs, from September to January, who will prepare Italian fare in the lower ground floor of Harrods (see story).
