

NEWS BRIEFS

Mot & Chandon, Dior, Cartier and Saks Fifth Avenue – Live news

November 9, 2015

Image of the Guggenheim, as shared by Dior

---

By STAFF REPORTS

Luxury Daily's live news from Nov. 6:

Mot & Chandon renovates cellars after UNESCO heritage site honor

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

LVMH-owned Champagne house Mot & Chandon has reopened its cellars for public viewing after a year's worth of renovations.

Click here to read the entire article

Dior links past and present for Guggenheim International Gala coverage

French atelier Christian Dior celebrated art, the first love of its founding designer, with a two-night gala held at New York's Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation.

Click here to read the entire article

Cartier CEO departs amid mixed Richemont results

French jewelry house Cartier's CEO has resigned, citing personal reasons for his departure.

Click here to read the entire article

Saks to put deep freeze on flagship's facade for holiday light show

Department store chain Saks Fifth Avenue is transforming its New York flagship into a "winter palace" for the 2015 holiday season.

Click here to read the entire article