

The News and Intelligence You Need on Luxury

NEWS BRIEFS

UK luxury laundering, women's watches, Saks Mexico and credit – News briefs

November 24, 2015

Cara Delevingne for Tag Heuer

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury marketing:

UK luxury sector targeted over money laundering

Luxury goods retailers selling high-end cars, boats, private jets, art, antiques and jewelry are being used by the corrupt to hide the illegal proceeds of crime and to escape detection, according to research, says the Financial Times.

Click here to read the entire article on the Financial Times

Watch brands find growth in the women's market

It's a tough time for haute horologists. Fluctuating currency rates, an unstable global economy and a major sales slowdown in China has caused a once-solid market to crack, according to Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Saks Mexico adds 15 luxury shops, plans third store

Saks Fifth Avenue Mexico will open nearly 15 luxury shops-in-shop in its store in Mexico City's wealthy Santa Fe quarter and plans to open its third store in the city's increasingly affluent Perisur area, said Edgar Smolensky, who recently was promoted to chief executive officer of the retailer, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

How to fly free forever: Put $170M on your AmEx

Chinese billionaire Liu Yiqian, who doesn't exactly struggle to afford a plane ticket, can now likely fly free, in first class, with his whole family, anywhere in the world, for the rest of his life. All because he bought a painting, per The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on The New York Times

 $Luxury \ {\tt Daily} \ is \ published \ each \ business \ day. \ Thank \ you \ for \ reading \ us. \ Your \ \underline{feedback} \ is \ welcome.$