Spring break luxury

Four Seasons' Grown-Up Spring Break is part of the hotelier's "The Best Keeps Getting Better" campaign, featuring a number of special initiatives for 2016.

Complimentary extras for Grown-Up Spring Break include local craft beer tastings, cooking classes, pool parties, snorkeling, outrigger canoe paddling and morning yoga, among many others. In addition, the resort is offering its popular stand-up paddleboard yoga classes on a complimentary basis for the length of Grown-Up Spring Break.

For guests looking for additional activities, Four Seasons' "Experience More" package can be booked.

Those who do book an Experience More package can receive up to $200 in resort credit per night. The credit can then be applied toward spa treatments, the resort's upscale boutiques or its award-winning restaurants.

The Maui property is also celebrating its 25th anniversary this year by planning an event for 2041, another 25 years down the road.

Beginning now, the resort is soliciting from employees and patrons written memories, photos and other memorabilia to bury in a time capsule that will not be opened until the resort's 50th anniversary. The time capsule gives Four Seasons patrons a chance to relive great memories and be co-creators of content in a fun and noncommercial way (see story).
