

NEWS BRIEFS

Dior, Dolce & Gabbana, Hedi Slimane and business jets – News briefs

March 4, 2016

YSL advertising image

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury marketing:

Christian Dior to return to Blenheim Palace for its cruise 2017 show

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

While Dior has yet to name a replacement for Raf Simons, the French house announced March 3 via Vogue UK that its spring/summer 2017 cruise collection the first to be designed by Simons's successor as opposed to the in-house team will take place on May 31 at the historic Blenheim Palace in Oxfordshire, England, the principal residence of the Duke of Marlborough and the birthplace of Winston Churchill, reports Fashionista.

Click here to read the entire article on Fashionista

Dolce & Gabbana took a misstep with this sandal

When Dolce & Gabbana launched its hijab line back in January, the Italian brand seemed like it was on the right track in terms of making cultural progress. But things can change quickly as witnessed this week, just two months after, when the fashion house has been red flagged for the name of one of its shoes from the Spring 2016 collection; it's called the "slave sandal" and is currently available to pre-order for $2,395, per Nylon.

Click here to read the entire article on Nylon

At Paris Fashion Week, all eyes will be on Hedi Slimane

Hedi Slimane's debut on Oct. 1, 2012, as the new creative and image director of Yves Saint Laurent, with a ready-to-wear collection he'd rebranded months before as, simply, Saint Laurent, was the news event of that Paris season, says The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on The New York Times

How to fly like an Asian tycoon: Bring the bling

Hermes tea sets. Burberry divans. Chanel blankets. Put those on the shopping list if you want to fly like a tycoon in Asia, according to Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.