

NEWS BRIEFS

Prada, De Beers, Canada and Ferrari – News briefs

November 8, 2016

Image from Saks' "I Left My Heart in Toronto" campaign

By STAFF REPORTS

Prada-funded restoration of Vasari's "Last Supper" unveiled

Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper" in Milan may be instantly more recognizable around the world, but there is another painting of the same name by Giorgio Vasari that has a highly symbolic value and that was unveiled in Florence on Friday after a technically complex restoration with Prada's contribution, says Women's Wear Daily.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

De Beers tries to counter a growing threat: Man-made diamonds

A small team of scientists working for De Beers is scrambling to stave off a looming threat that could tarnish the luster of natural-mined diamonds: high-quality man-made stones, reports the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article on the Wall Street Journal

Capitalizing on Canada's fashion moment

The Great White North' has never felt more culturally relevant and luxury retailers have taken note. But how real and big is the opportunity? asks Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Ferrari improves FY guidance after Q3 beats forecasts

Italian luxury carmaker Ferrari raised its outlook for the year after reporting a better-than-expected 10 percent rise in third-quarter adjusted core earnings on Monday, according to Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.