

NEWS BRIEFS

Fendi, Alessandro Michele, Louis Vuitton and Dolce & Gabbana – News briefs

April 25, 2017

Dolce & Gabbana's #DGLovesChina

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury marketing:

Japan a focus for Fendi

There's a bit of Rome in Tokyo care of Fendi, says WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

Gucci's Alessandro saddened by plagiarism accusations

Gucci's creative director, Alessandro Michele, has responded to claims that the brand has plagiarized the work of Central Saint Martins student Pierre-Louis Auvray, telling the Business of Fashion, "It's something that makes me feel really sad," per British Vogue.

Click here to read the entire article on British Vogue

Louis Vuitton's collaboration with Jeff Koons mets lukewarm reviews on China's Weibo

China has been an exciting testing ground as of late for collaborations between the art world and luxury, with pop and contemporary art becoming increasingly influential among China's emerging middle class youth. However, the latest partnership in this category, this time between French luxury brand Louis Vuitton and New York-based pop artist Jeff Koons, has attracted mixed reviews on Chinese social media, reports Jing Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Jing Daily

Dolce & Gabbana fashion shoot on streets of Beijing upsets locals

It only makes sense that a city as cosmopolitan as Beijing serve as a backdrop for today's latest fashion. However,

Chinese netizens are reacting with anger to a series of Dolce & Gabbana photographs that showcase Beijing locales and their residents, according to The Beijinger.

Click here to read the entire article on The Beijinger

---

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.