

NEWS BRIEFS

Marc Jacobs, summer in the Hamptons, Ramadan and Tesla – News briefs

May 30, 2017

Marc Jacobs' spring/summer 2017 campaign

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury marketing:

Sebastian Suhl likely leaving Marc Jacobs

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Sebastian Suhl is said to be leaving his post as chief executive officer of Marc Jacobs International, according to market sources. Some rumblings suggest the departure could precede the next round of ready-to-wear-shows in September. Marc Jacobs has long shown on the last day of the New York collections. Suhl, Jacobs and the company declined comment, reports WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

Summer in the Hamptons: Eleven Madison Park and Uber \(finally!\) are coming to the East End

From the toughest reservation in town to the return of the ride-hailing app, here are six things that Hamptonites will be buzzing about, says New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on New York Times

"Ramadan rush" brings Gulf retailers to Europe

Knightsbridge might be dominated by British department store stalwarts such as Harrods and Harvey Nichols, but affluent customers from the Gulf wandering down Sloane Street during London's so-called "Ramadan rush" will also find a retail concept conceived back in the Middle East, per Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Tesla's Model X is missing the US SUV craze

Not everything Elon Musk touches has been a runaway sales success, according to Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.