

NEWS BRIEFS

Fendi, real estate in the Hamptons, Mercedes-Benz and Burberry – News briefs

July 20, 2017

Gigi Hadid for Fendi fall/winter 2017. Image credit: Fendi

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Fendi sets retail expansion in the US

Fendi is boosting its presence in the U.S., opening a new store in New York's SoHo district and its first units in San Francisco and Dallas, says WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

Luxury home sales jump in New York's Hamptons

Luxury property sales in the Hamptons, New York's weekend haven for the wealthy, are on the upswing thanks to a buoyant stock market, with four closings over the $20 million mark in the three months ended in June compared with none last year, real estate data show, reports CNBC.

Click here to read the entire article on CNBC

The Mercedes pickup truck is finally here, sort of

Mercedes-Benz has finally debuted the pickup truck it plans to bring to market, a workhorse-meets-luxury vehicle meant to appeal to a diverse group of consumers from weekend warriors to construction contractors, according to Fortune.

Click here to read the entire article on Fortune

Topshop hires from Burberry for new top job

Topshop has recruited its new CEO from Burberry HQ. Paul Price, who was chief merchandising officer at the luxury British fashion house, has been with Burberry for over a decade, where he was in charge of all product in womenswear, menswear, accessories and childrenswear. He will begin his new role on Sept. 4, per British Vogue.

Click here to read the entire article on British Vogue

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.