

NEWS BRIEFS

Tom Ford, shoplifting, private jets and Viceroy – News briefs

September 11, 2017

Tom Ford's SS17 collection. Image credit: Tom Ford

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Tom Ford: What's next

With his brand on track to hit nearly $2 billion in retail sales in 2017, the designer is on a quest for global dominance, says Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Tijuana shoplifting ring hit US malls for $20M in luxury goods, authorities say

For at least the past decade, Tijuana vendors put in special orders for designer merchandise, dispatching teams of shoplifters to malls around the country to steal more than $20 million in loot that could be resold at lower prices in Mexico, according to an indictment unsealed in San Diego federal court Wednesday, reports the Los Angeles Times.

Click here to read the entire article on the Los Angeles Times

The family-friendly private jet takes off

Business fliers eager to preserve their sanity despite a Beyonce-like schedule have long justified the exorbitant expense of traveling by private jet. But shouldn't the same cost-benefit analysis apply to your most precious asset: vacation time? asks the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article on the Wall Street Journal

Tale of how not to run Dubai luxe hotel lands in LA court

The owner of a $1 billion luxury hotel in Dubai claims the management company it fired just three months after opening is still scaring off visitors, according to Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.