

NEWS BRIEFS

Prada, Cond Nast, luxury travel and Montreal – News briefs

September 29, 2017

Prada's spring/summer 2018 show. Image credit: Prada

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

A little help from "Mr Bags?" Prada plays catch-up online in China

At Prada's spring/summer 2018 show in Milan last week in a warehouse papered with giant pop-art comic strips, one name in the coveted front row stood out: Tao Liang, otherwise known as Chinese blogger "Mr Bags," per Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Exec shake-up at Cond Nast as Pamela Drucker Mann moves up, Jim Norton moves out

Cond Nast's chief business officer and president of revenue Jim Norton has been given his walking papers, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

When personalized luxury holidays go wrong - and how to get it right

Luxury travel has entered an age of "bespoke 2.0" but it is vital that personalization does not become intrusive, a panel of experts has agreed at Telegraph Travel's inaugural Differentiator Series event, says The Telegraph.

Click here to read the entire article on The Telegraph

A luxury building boom hits Montreal

Along the main shopping street in the area of downtown Montreal known as the Golden Square Mile, Sonya Szczygiel and her husband, John Guinto, have sold beaded bracelets made of semiprecious stones for the last five years, according to The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on The New York Times

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.