How Tom Ford is redefining sustainable luxury, one suit at a time

Designer, style legend, director and writer are all labels one could readily apply to Tom Ford but what about environmentalist? In today's day and age, when climate change is becoming an ever grimmer reality, every designer should have sustainable practices in place. What most fans of Ford's highest-of-the-highbrow luxuries might not realize is that he's been working to make his business greener for the better part of a decade, says Vogue.

What Sephora knows about women in tech that Silicon Valley doesn't

In a San Francisco office an hour's drive from some of the biggest companies in Silicon Valley, Sephora has managed a corporate feat that would make the leaders of Google Inc., Apple Inc. and Facebook Inc. envious: a majority of the cosmetics retailer's technology workers are women, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Uber riders in Dubai can now select electric-powered Tesla

Ride-hailing service Uber on Oct. 10 began offering its customers in Dubai, United Arab Emirates the option to ride in one of 50 new Tesla electric-powered vehicles a stark contrast to the large gas-guzzling sedans and luxury sports cars that dominate the emirate's six-lane highways, per The New York Times.
