

NEWS BRIEFS

Valentino, Aquazzura, Zegna and Kenzo – News briefs

November 21, 2017

Valentino has added a new hire to its team. Image credit: Valentino

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Sebastian Suhl is joining Valentino

Sebastian Suhl is joining Valentino as the new managing director of global markets, starting in January and reporting to chief executive officer Stefano Sassi, WWD has learned.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Ivanka Trump, Italy's Aquazzura end "Wild Thing" shoe lawsuit

Italian shoemaker Aquazzura has dismissed its lawsuit accusing Ivanka Trump of stealing the design of its "Wild Thing" stiletto-heeled shoe for her own, less-expensive "Hettie" model, reports Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Italian luxury group Zegna tailors its cloth to suit millennials

Ermenegildo Zegna, the Italian men's luxury group, is hoping to lure a new generation of millennial-minded businessmen for whom the suit and tie risk becoming outdated, with the launch of a "wash and go" luxury merino wool suit this month, according to the Financial Times.

Click here to read the entire article on the Financial Times

The cult designers remaking luxury

To understand how Carol Lim and Humberto Leon have made Kenzo, a Paris-based luxury brand, into a popular phenomenon, you need to know that neither is a trained designer, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

---

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.