

NEWS BRIEFS

Luxottica, China's Taobao, Stella McCartney and collaborations – News briefs

November 29, 2017

Valentino's Glamgloss sunglasses are produced by Luxottica. Image credit: Valentino

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Canada approves Luxottica-Essilor merger

The Competition Bureau of Canada gave the green light to the proposed merger of the Italian fashion eyewear company Luxottica Group and French lens-maker Essilor, the companies said jointly in a statement on Nov. 28, reports WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

Boeing 747s to luxury villas: Why China's businesses are offloading assets in massive online auctions

Taobao, an online bazaar operated by Chinese ecommerce titan Alibaba, has long been the place where almost half a billion shoppers go for discounted food, clothes and gadgets, but alongside those deals are listings that can reach a completely different level, says Forbes.

Click here to read the entire article on Forbes

Stella McCartney calls for overhaul of "incredibly wasteful" fashion industry

Clothes must be designed differently, worn for longer and recycled as much as possible to stop the global fashion industry consuming a quarter of the world's annual carbon budget by 2050, says The Guardian.

Click here to read the entire article on The Guardian

Colette founder Sarah Andelman explains the importance of collaborations

Colette co-founder and creative director Sarah Andelman explains what makes a successful collaboration and the need to push boundaries, per Complex.

Click here to read the entire article on Complex

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.