

NEWS BRIEFS

Day's wrap: Paris, Veuve Clicquot, Cline, duty-free retail, Lanvin and La Perla

December 22, 2017

Cline's spring/summer 2018 campaign. Image credit: Cline

By STAFF REPORTS

Luxury Daily's live news from Dec. 22:

Paris tourism's rebound to support luxury brands, retailers

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Paris' tourism decline following the 2015 terrorist attacks will likely see a recovery in 2018 as the city works to reestablish itself as a top travel destination.

Click here to read the entire article

Veuve Clicquot turns to extensive cellar reserve for innovative cuve blend

LVMH-owned Champagne house Veuve Clicquot is touting its passion for innovation by launching an exclusive auteur wine, Extra Brut Extra Old.

Click here to read the entire article

Phoebe Philo ends 10-year tenure at Cline

After rumors of her departure earlier this year, Phoebe Philo will step down as designer of fashion house Cline.

Click here to read the entire article

Everything's bigger in Texas, including its new duty-free shopping destination

When thinking of duty-free shopping, Europe and Asia come to mind first, but a Fort Worth, TX-based retailer developer has unveiled the largest travel retail store in the Western Hemisphere.

Click here to read the entire article

Lanvin defends its interests following negative press reports

French atelier Lanvin has issued a statement in response to reports regarding its ongoing financial challenges and murky future.

Click here to read the entire article

Chinese investment firm in talks to acquire Italy's La Perla

The majority shareholder of Italian lingerie maker La Perla has begun a process to sell its shares to Shanghai-based Fosun International.

Click here to read the entire article

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.