

NEWS BRIEFS

Beauty pop-ups, managerial musical chairs, luxury living and travel changes – News briefs

January 2, 2018

Phoebe Philo of Cline stepped down days before Christmas. Image credit: Cline

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Beauty pop-ups proliferate in Paris

Beauty pop-up shops continue to proliferate here while becoming ever more experiential, reports WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

For luxury brands, the musical chairs whirled faster in 2017

The managerial musical chairs at the top of the fashion and other luxury industries reached newly feverish levels in 2017: Every month of the year save August, when most companies go on vacation saw at least one big shake-up. And a big announcement came just days before Christmas: Phoebe Philo of Cline was leaving the brand after a decade as artistic director, says The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on The New York Times

Luxury living married with technology plus uber-amenities attract "elite luxury" renters

Savvy Los Angeles developers are marrying luxury living with technology plus uber-amenities to attract a new breed of "Elite Luxury" renters, per Forbes.

Click here to read the entire article on Forbes

6 important ways that luxury travel changed in 2017

A lot can happen in a year but 2017 was particularly eventful when it came to how we travel the world. The threats that loomed largest in 2016, Zika and the migrant crisis, faded into the rear-view mirror as talk of a United States travel ban and Brexit suddenly dominated global headlines. And that was just the beginning. Here are six significant ways the world changed for globetrotters in the last 12 months, according to Fortune.

Click here to read the entire article on Fortune

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.