

NEWS BRIEFS

Tiffany, luxury retail, sneakers and Saudi Arabia – News briefs

January 4, 2018

Luxury retail was a winner this holiday, according to an HBC exec. Image credit: Saks Fifth Avenue

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Reed Krakoff's take on Tiffany continues

Tiffany & Co.'s revision under Reed Krakoff has been slow going but more should be visible in the first half, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Luxury retailers big winner this holiday season: Matthew Rubel

Matthew Rubel, Hudson's Bay Company director, provides insight to the retail sector and weighs in on how some retailers are able to compete with or hold their own against Amazon, per CNBC.

Click here to watch the entire video on CNBC

The luxury sneakers only you can buy

As an alternative to customers lining up at sneaker stores fighting for the chance to buy a designer shoe that only a few people have, Mark Gainor and Jimmy Gorecki are offering something even more exclusive: a kick designed for you, and you alone, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

Previously detained ex-finance minister Assaf seen at Saudi cabinet meeting

Saudi state minister Ibrahim al-Assaf was seen attending a cabinet meeting on Jan. 2, according to a photograph published on official media, almost two months after the veteran official was reported detained in a crackdown on corruption, says Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.