

NEWS BRIEFS

The Olympics, Farfetch, Marchesa and Chinese investors – News briefs

February 1, 2018

Marchesa pre-fall 2018. Image credit: Marchesa

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Kim Jong Un's luxury ski resort steals Olympic spotlight

North Korea's abrupt cancellation of a joint cultural event this week leaves only one venue in the country that will host events for next month's Winter Olympics: Kim Jong Un's luxury ski resort, reports Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

Farfetch gears up for fashion store of the future

London-based online fashion retailer Farfetch plans to roll out new technology to revolutionize shopping in stores in the coming months, its chief executive said on Jan. 31, per Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Marchesa cancels NYFW show

Marchesa has cancelled the brand's autumn/winter 2018 show at New York Fashion Week. Scheduled to take place on Feb. 14, the womenswear label will now debut its latest collection in a digital format, according to British Vogue.

Click here to read the entire article on British Vogue

Chinese investors pile into global fashion

In this month's China Edit, BoF explores the flurry of activity from Chinese firms investing in the fashion sector.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.