

NEWS BRIEFS

Giorgio Armani, overpriced luxury, translations and the Philippine government – News briefs

February 8, 2018

Interior of the Emporio Armani Cafe in Paris. Image credit: Armani

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Paris Emporio Armani restaurant receives a Michelin star

The Emporio Armani Restaurant in Paris, helmed by chef Massimo Tringali, has secured a Michelin star, says WWD.

Click here to read the entire article on WWD

It's not just luxury handbags that are overpriced

Markets are in turmoil, but the diamond-studded luxury goods juggernaut shows no signs of slowing down. Shoppers are snapping up Louis Vuitton handbags and Gucci loafers. Even the hard-hit watch market is showing signs of revival, per Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

How international luxury brands translate their names for China

From di ao (Dior) to xiang nai er (Chanel), every fashion label has to decide what to do with their name when they enter the China marketplace. Dialects, lucky and unlucky names and characters all have a bearing on the decision, according to South China Morning Post.

Click here to read the entire article on South China Morning Post

Philippine government crushes dozens of luxury and classic cars

The Philippine government destroyed over two dozen illegally imported classic and luxury cars on Feb. 6 to send a message against tax evasion, reports Fox News.

Click here to read the entire article on Fox News

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.