

NEWS BRIEFS

Moncler, Gucci, Trump Hotels and Aston Martin – News briefs

February 27, 2018

Moncler Ski collection winter 2018. Image credit: Moncler

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Italy's Moncler sees further growth this year after 15pc rise in 2017 sales

Italian luxury outerwear maker Moncler said on Monday it foresaw further growth in 2018, after posting a 15 percent rise in revenue last year and launching a new product strategy based on faster-paced collections, says Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Gucci seeks to escape fashion's boom-bust

Gucci is in the midst of a boom shadowed by the threat of a bust: fickle shoppers falling out of love with the Italian fashion house as quickly as they embraced it, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article on the Wall Street Journal

Panama's government steps into Trump hotel dispute

Panama's government said Monday it was formally investigating a complaint that executives for President Donald Trump's family hotel business were illegally occupying a 70-story luxury Trump hotel amid a management dispute, per The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire article on The New York Times

Aston Martin posts first profit in 8 years

Aston Martin Holdings Ltd. is looking for a "big brother" partner in order to survive as a low-volume, luxury carmaker, even after it posted its first profit in eight years and prepares for a potential initial public offering.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.