

NEWS BRIEFS

Sneakers, Tiffany, Tesla and real estate – News briefs

May 25, 2018

Emilio Pucci's Sneakers of the World includes 11 international cities. Image credit: Emilio Pucci

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Fashion and sport brands clash in luxury sneakers race

What do you get when luxury fashion meets sport? $10,000 sneakers, says Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Consumers are returning to luxury brands such as Tiffany, and investors should too: analyst

Consumers are returning to the luxury goods sector with updated versions of iconic brands such as Tiffany & Co. and Louis Vuitton. Retail analyst Oliver Chen told CNBC that it's a good place for investors to be too, reports CNBC.

Click here to read the entire article on CNBC

Tesla's Model 3 isn't really for the mass market. It's a luxury car

The Tesla Model 3, with its starting price of $35,000, was supposed to be the car that brought electric driving to the masses. But that's not happening yet, according to CNN.

Click here to read the entire article on CNN

London's luxury homes lure hedge fund cash

Developers like building luxury London homes. Their bankers would rather they didn't, per Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.