

NEWS BRIEFS

Giuseppe Zanotti, influencers, luxury real estate and Maserati – News briefs

June 4, 2018

Giuseppe Zanotti's headquarters was robbed. Image credit: Giuseppe Zanotti

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Giuseppe Zanotti headquarters robbed

This is the sixth time in three years burglars burst into the footwear label's headquarters, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article at Women's Wear Daily

Fashion editors or influencers? Sometimes it's hard to tell

Magazine editors have blanched at the rise of digital influencers, but many have grown their own social media presence from hobby to side hustle, writes Business of Fashion

Click here to read the entire article at Business of Fashion

Luxury real estate comes to urban Chinatowns

Robert Arsenault, an international economic development consultant in Philadelphia, spends $2,540 a month for his two-bedroom in the Goldtex, a luxury building with a concierge, gym and a rooftop pool. His favorite amenity, though, is outside: a slew of authentic Chinese restaurants specializing in everything from Sichuan cuisine to dim sum, according to Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article at Wall Street Journal

Meet the Maserati Alfieri: Italian luxury electrified

Emboldened by the relative success of Ghibli sedan and Levante SUV, Maserati has now turned its attention to something more exotic with the announcement of a new flagship, fully-electric sport coupe: Meet the Maserati Alfieri, per CNET.

Click here to read the entire article at CNET

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.