

NEWS BRIEFS

Audi, brandalism, Emirates and Oscar de la Renta – News briefs

June 6, 2018

Audi reveals its Q8. Image credit: Audi

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: just released
State of Luxury 2018 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Audi Q8 SUV revealed: Luxury SUV market gets new 5-passenger model

Audi revealed a brand-new luxury SUV called the Q8, aiming to attract customers who are ditching passenger cars for bigger vehicles, says USA Today.

Click here to read the entire story on USA Today

Why brandalism has become a luxury brand's new best friend

With the blueprint for luxury fashion retail sprouting unprecedented new contours - fueled both by streetwear's freshly gilded edge and millennials' disregard for heritage without innovation, edge or obvious purpose - it's perhaps unsurprising that an appreciation of off-piste brand behavior is booming, per Forbes.

Click here to read the entire article on Forbes

Emirates, synonymous with luxury, wants more legroom farther back

Emirates aircraft are synonymous with luxury, offering premium-class passengers shower on board and a bar while cruising at 30,000 feet. Now the carrier wants to give some legroom for those flying coach, as reported on Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

An Oscar de la Renta boutique pops up in Mykonos' Nammos Village

Oscar de la Renta has just opened its first pop-up boutique on Mykonos following in the footsteps of labels including Off-White, Missoni, Gucci and Chanel, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on Women's Wear Daily

© Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.