

NEWS BRIEFS

Prada, men's fashion week, Cline and Kate Spade – News briefs

June 11, 2018

Cadillac House is located on Hudson Street. Image credit: Charles Rousset/BFA.com

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Prada gets it. luxury needs the digital rich kids

Young, rich and surrounded by high-end toys. This isn't Rich Kids of Instagram we are talking about. It's the new generation of leaders who are taking up roles within their families' luxury businesses. And given the increasing influence of millennials, online and social media on top-range consumption, that's just what storied fashion houses need, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

New York men's dates to move to June in 2019

Starting next year, the Council of Fashion Designers of America will shift the dates for the spring men's shows to the first week in June. This will not only coincide with the fledgling New York women's resort season, but will also allow American designers to show before their European counterparts, according to The New York Times.

Click here to read the entire story on The New York Times

Hedi Slimane's Cline shake-up

Hedi Slimane's Celine shake-up includes a season-less core collection, temporary pop-up stores and a product delivery cycle modeled on streetwear drops, according to Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire story on Business of Fashion

Why Kate Spade sales surged after the designer's death

In the hours after news of designer Kate Spade's suicide broke on Tuesday, activity on the fashion-resale site Poshmark began to spike, says the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article on the Wall Street Journal

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.