Christofle's Karl Lagerfeld set will be numbered and signed by the designer himself and placed in two egg-shaped storage capsules.

The capsules are designed with an art deco aesthetic in mind with a play on shadow and light, which Mr. Lagerfeld is known for.

To celebrate the collection, Christofle is hosting a special dinner where its new CEO, Nathalie Remy, will be in attendance. The dinner will take place in New York on June 21.

During NYFW, preordering will be available at The Webster, Christofle's store on Madison Avenue and Karl Lagerfeld store in SoHo, as well as online.

On Sept. 14, London Fashion Week attendees can also preorder at Harrods and Karl Lagerfeld, before the products become available in Paris on Sept. 25.

The Rue Saint-Honor Christofle location and Karl Lagerfeld Boulevard Saint-Germain boutique will offer the preorder.

Oct. 1 will mark the collaborative collection's official worldwide launch.

Mr. Lagerfeld is known for his many collaborations and limited-edition collections with other brands, as his fans are highly interested in these exclusives.

The designer also recently extended his eponymous brand into cosmetics with a collection that reflects his playful yet polished aesthetic.

Working with Australian cosmetics company ModelCo, the label has created a 50-piece line that includes products and tools. While Karl Lagerfeld has previously released fragrances, this marks the brand's first makeup line (see story).
