

NEWS BRIEFS

YNAP, luxury resale, Dior and Chinese millennials – News briefs

July 12, 2018

Yoox Net-A-Porter will focus on mobile shopping over the next year. Image credit: YNAP

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

YNAP commissions research to support digital education among young women

A lack of awareness and inspiring role models emerge as the main reasons restraining young women from pursuing careers in tech, writes Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Luxury resale's quiet reckoning

High-end re-commerce sites like The RealReal and Vestiaire Collective do big business, but the luxury resale market faces challenges ahead, per Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Dior's new direction

"I think it's a new Dior," says Pietro Beccari, the affable Italian who was appointed as the brand's chief executive in November last year. One of Bernard Arnault's most trusted lieutenants, Beccari, 50, is an LVMH high flyer, reports the Financial Times.

Click here to read the entire article on the Financial Times

How millennials and Chinese consumers will change luxury travel

Chinese consumers and millennials are two of the biggest targets for trends stories. Everyone talks about them having a massive impact on industries like travel but it can be hard to pinpoint exactly what kind of impact, according to Skift.

Click here to read the entire article on Skift

---

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.