The new hotel is featured alongside the banks of the city's Yangzte River for a luxury-level view.

Nanjing's Youth Cultural Centre is a unique building, designed with the silhouette of a sailing ship in mind.

High-end dining experiences, a spa, a sky atrium pool, 49 suites and 212 rooms make up the Jumeriah hotel's offerings in the building. The brand is hoping to attract both local and international travelers with its new location.

"Jumeirah Nanjing is a stunning addition to our portfolio and we are exceedingly proud to be selected as guardians of such a significant property," said José Silva, CEO of Jumeirah Group, in a statement.

"The International Youth Cultural Centre is an architectural masterpiece and its iconic stature is truly impressive," he said. "Jumeirah Nanjing is a remarkable destination which will boost tourism to the city, and represents a significant milestone in achieving our global expansion strategy."

The group recently responded to guests' hankering for options by expanding how loyalty points can be redeemed. Jumeirah Sirius, named after the brightest star in the sky, is a recognition and rewards program for guests of Jumeirah hotels, resorts and residents around the world. At its earlier state, Jumeirah Sirius was designed to reward guests when they stay, dine, relax or shop within the Jumeirah portfolio of properties, but a new program scheduled launched in mid-2017 expanded potential perks (see story).
