

NEWS BRIEFS

Farfetch, Swarovski, JD.com and Tesla – News briefs

November 6, 2018

Image credit: Sarah Brightman

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury:

Will Farfetch's first earnings match the hype?

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

This week, everyone will be talking about Farfetch's first financial results as a public company, the Victoria's Secret fashion show and the winner of the CFDA/Vogue Fashion Fund's $400,000 prize, says Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire story on Business of Fashion

Swarovski partners with Sarah Brightman for her "Hymn" album, tour

In order to make the classical soprano singer Sarah Brightman shine just a little bit more on her "Hymn" tour next year, Swarovski has teamed with the English crossover artist on a collection and partnership, says Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read to the entire story at Women's Wear Daily

JD.com apologizes for sexist marketing campaign as Singles' Day shopping event nears

JD.com, China's second largest e-commerce company, has apologised for a business unit's sexist marketing campaign, which sparked an outcry among social media users more than a week before the country's annual Singles' Day, the world's biggest shopping event, says South China Morning Post.

Click here to read the entire story on SCMP

How Tesla made a record profit

Tesla has produced a turnaround for the ages. Knowing how the company pulled it off is important for investors. Last week, chief executive Elon Musk said the electric car maker was struggling for survival up until September. Turns out, Tesla produced its biggest profit ever that quarter, says Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire story on WSJ

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.