

NEWS BRIEFS

Luxury carmakers, Chanel, Ralph Lauren and Moda Operandi – News briefs

November 15, 2018

The BMW X1 was the top-selling premium compact SUV in Europe in 2018 H1. Image credit: BMW

By STAFF REPORTS

VW, Daimler and BMW brace for U.S. tariffs as truce nears end

Investors in European carmakers are once again facing months of share volatility after the U.S. circulated a draft report on tariffs and European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker signaled a cease-fire in the looming trade war may soon come to an end, says Bloomberg.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

Lily Rose Depp toasts Chanel's limited-edition red No.5 bottle

Chanel loves a big spectacle. To debut the new Red Edition of its No.5 L'Eau perfume, the French house mounted a life-size, eight-meter version of the limited-edition perfume bottle and lit up London's Berkeley Square in red, says Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on Women's Wear Daily

Ralph Lauren Is the Queen's newest knight

Ralph Lauren is about to get royally honored for his five-decade career in fashion. The Bronx native, 79, will become the first American fashion designer to receive the title of Honorary Knight Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. He will be honored by the Queen at a ceremony next year, says Vanity Fair.

Click here to read the entire story on Vanity Fair

Moda Operandi names new fashion directors

Lisa Aiken has been appointed Moda Operandi's new women's fashion director, and Josh Peskowitz has been named the company's new men's fashion director, says Fashion United.

Click here to read the entire story on Fashion United

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.