

NEWS BRIEFS

Chinese luxury brands, New York real estate, Dolce & Gabbana and Tesla – News briefs

November 27, 2018

Manhattan New York real estate Image credit: Redfin

By STAFF REPORTS

Stirring dragon: The rise Of Chinese luxury brands

In 2013, the Chinese government sought to diffuse social tension by imposing a ban on TV and radio ads for luxury goods. This was meant to address the country's widening gap between the rich and poor, although Beijing also claimed to be concerned about the effect these ads had on values and creating a "bad social ethos," says Forbes.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Click here to read the entire story on Forbes

Thanksgiving cramps luxury Manhattan activity

Buyers signed contracts for only 12 luxury homes in Manhattan in the week ending Sunday, as the Thanksgiving holiday put its typical dent in Manhattan luxury activity, according to the weekly roundup from Olshan Realty.

Click here to read the entire story on Mansion Global

Dolce & Gabbana: assessing the fallout

"It's a landslide of colossal dimensions, and the speed of it all is frightening," said Alessandro Maria Ferreri, chief executive officer and owner of The Style Gate consulting firm, referring to the media and business storm that has hit Dolce & Gabbana, to Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

Whatever does not kill Tesla makes it stronger

Selling Tesla Inc.'s stock short is the Escher's "Waterfall" of trading, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

---

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.