

NEWS BRIEFS

Luxury chalets, expedition cruises, electric luxury cars and Tesla – News briefs

December 31, 2018

How the other half a percent live, life behind the doors of a luxury chalet Image credit: Yves Gameau

By STAFF REPORTS

Inside the world of super luxury chalets

Welcome to the world of the super rich. This isn't how the other half ski so much as the other half a per cent hit the slopes. I am not of their ilk, and here only as a guest of the upmarket Swiss travel agency Leo Trippi. Oliver Corkhill, CEO of its UK operation, was showing a few professional observers (read goggle-eyed hacks) around the company's ritziest chalet in the Swiss Alps, newly available to rent and exclusive to Leo Trippi.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Click here to read the entire story on Telegraph

Luxury comes to expedition cruising

New small ships built for adventure are also offering a full range of amenities, from saunas and fine dining to solariums and luxury suites.

Click here to read the entire story on NYTimes

2019 will be the year of the electric luxury car

For the all-electric luxury car and SUV market, this year's release of the Jaguar I-Pace was just the beginning. Starting next year and continuing in 2020, Jaguar will start getting competition from brands like Audi, Mercedes-Benz, BMW, and Porsche. Tesla will also be raising the competitive bar even further.

Click here to read the entire story on CNN.com

Tesla scrambles to sell cars before a tax break fades

This year, Mitch Mallin bought a metallic blue Tesla Model 3 sedan equipped with heated seats and a bevy of other options, all for $56,000 twice as much as he had ever paid for a car before.

Click here to read the entire story on NYTimes

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.