

NEWS BRIEFS

Tesla, Sephora, Audi and Marc Jacobs – News briefs

January 9, 2019

Nirvana and Marc Jacobs' smiley faces side by side. Image credit: Nirvana's complaint

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Tesla's Model 3 was the best-selling luxury car of 2018

Tesla navigated a bumpy road in 2018 a year that saw CEO Elon Musk step down as chairman as part of an SEC settlement over fraud charges, while the electric automaker also faced criticism over working conditions and production delays, says CNBC.

Click here to read the entire story on CNBC

Jean-Andr Rougeot named CEO of Sephora Americas

Jean-Andr Rougeot has been named chief executive officer of Sephora Americas, nabbing one of beauty's most high-profile positions, says Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

The 2019 Audi Q8 is what luxury sedans have become

The new Audi Q8 is a statement vehicle as much for Audi as it is for the many well-heeled people who will park them in their garages. Audi's flagship A8 sedan still outprices the Q8, which starts at $68,395, yet with more and more buyers having given up on sedans entirely, this new five-seat SUV best defines the Audi brand, says Car and Driver.

Click here to read the entire story on Car and Driver

Nirvana sues for copyright infringement over Marc Jacobs' Grunge Redux collection

Nirvana is suing Marc Jacobs International, alleging that the fashion brand is infringing on the band's copyright for its smiley face logo, according to Forbes.

Click here to read the entire story on Forbes

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.