

NEWS BRIEFS

Tesla, Dolce & Gabbana, Alibaba and Emirates – News briefs

February 1, 2019

Tesla's Model 3 sedan. Image credit: Tesla

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Today in luxury:

Tesla's challenge: Leaving behind the lap of luxury

Tesla is finally making a profit. For the first time, the California-based electric carmaker has posted two quarterly profits in a row, says NPR.

Click here to read the entire story on NPR

Dolce & Gabbana knockoffs persist in NYC's biggest Chinatown

Dolce & Gabbana's resonance with the Chinese market is not a done deal as far as bootleggers are concerned, says Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

Alibaba leads rebound in Chinese ecommerce stocks

Shares of Alibaba and smaller rivals have surged in January, as investors grew more optimistic about online spending in China, says the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire story on WSJ

Airbus A380 under threat as Emirates weighs rejigged order: sources

Dubai's Emirates is exploring switching some orders for the world's largest jetliner, the Airbus A380, to the smaller A350 in a move raising new doubts about the future of Europe's superjumbo, people familiar with the matter said, says The New York Times.

 $\ensuremath{\textcircled{O}}$ 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.