

NEWS BRIEFS

Chanel, McQueen, Luxottica and Aston Martin – News briefs

March 6, 2019

Chanel's final Karl Lagerfeld show. Image credit: Chanel

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Chanel bids farewell to Karl Lagerfeld in last glitzy show

Karl Lagerfeld's last collection for Chanel opened with a minute's silence for the late designer on Tuesday, as friends, collaborators and fans turned out in Paris to remember his 35 years as the creative force behind the French couture house, says Reuters.

Click here to read the entire article on Reuters

Mastering the McQueen challenge: How to grow a young luxury business

Parent company Kering aims to turn Alexander McQueen into a billion-euro brand. Chief executive Emmanuel Gintzburger lays out the game plan, per Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire article on Business of Fashion

Luxottica delists from Milan Stock Exchange

It was not a surprise, but the Italian Stock Exchange lost on Tuesday one of its strongest public companies the eyewear giant Luxottica Group SpA. As reported, the delisting was expected to be on March 5 and follows the birth of EssilorLuxottica on Oct.1 last year, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Aston Martin CEO says company, brand tied to UK regardless of Brexit

Andy Palmer, chief executive officer at Aston Martin, discusses the high-end luxury automobile industry, Brexit's impact on the brand, building growth in the company and share price and electric vehicles under the Lagonda brand, per Bloomberg.

Click here to watch the video on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.