Luxury ranch resort and glamping destination The Resort at Paws Up will now provide XOJet members with special VIP treatment and access to the location's excursions and services. More than 17 United States cities will have direct access via private flights to the location, including Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Miami, New York and Palm Beach.

Private flight to glamping

Private hot air balloon rides, ATV rides, cattle wrangling, whitewater rafting, canoeing and fly fishing are a few of the activities available at the resort in Montana.

XOJet flights will take passengers to the Missoula Airport in Montana, only 35 minutes away from the resort. In addition to VIP service, XOJet customers will also have access to itineraries not available to the general public.

"Our clients and their families will be thrilled by the incomparable luxury, spectacular adventures and unspoiled wilderness that await them at The Resort at Paws Up," said James Henderson, president of commercial operations for XOJet, in a statement. "Aligning with such an acclaimed hospitality innovator is a natural expansion of our elite brand partner network."

The private aviation charter recently looked to build on its recent growth with two new appointments.

Mr. Henderson has been promoted to president of commercial operations, while Gregg Slow has been named chief client officer. Last year, XOJet grew its bookings by 30 percent, and it is focusing on client experiences to drive further expansion (see story).

"We welcome XOJet as an extension of The Resort at Paws Up operation, renowned for delivering five-star guest and service experiences," said Laurence Lipson, co-owner of The Resort at Paws Up, in a statement. "With direct private jet access from more than 17 U.S. cities, we look forward to welcoming new and returning guests to our luxury ranch resort that is situated on the untamed land that we affectionately call America's Private National Park."
