

NEWS BRIEFS

The Hamptons, Berluti, secondhand luxury and Kering – News briefs

April 26, 2019

Hamptons real estate property. Image credit: Nest Seekers International

---

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Luxury loses luster in Hamptons as high-end homes pile up

Lavish vacation homes are losing their luster in New York's Hamptons, the beachfront retreat favored by financiers and celebrities, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

Berluti to collaborate with Sotheby's on online auction

Berluti, the LVMH-owned men's wear and leatherware-maker is partnering with the world's largest auction house Sotheby's for an online sale, titled "Berluti: The Art of Craftsmanship," says Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

Shunning bad luck, Hong Kong buys into "pre-loved" fashion

Joleen Soo flicked through racks at the launch of Hong Kong's first "pre-owned" designer warehouse, stopping to examine Prada and Dries Van Noten outfits with tags showing up to 95 percent off their retail price, says Reuters.

Click here to read the entire story on Reuters

Kering wants to be the "most influential group in the luxury universe." What does that mean?

Chief executive Francois-Henri Pinault laid out his ambitious strategy at the Paris-based conglomerate's annual meeting for shareholders, says Business of Fashion.

Click here to read the entire story on Business of Fashion

---

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.