

NEWS BRIEFS

Kering, Audi, Tiffany and Tesla – News briefs

May 24, 2019

Gucci parent company Kering has launches logistics network. Image courtesy of Gucci

By STAFF REPORTS

Kering to invest in new logistics network in Italy, U.S.

The decision will impact around half of the 800 employees working in Cadempino, near the Swiss city of Lugano, as 400 employees will relocate to the new complex in Italy in a project that is expected to be delivered over the next three years, from 2020 to 2022, says Women's Wear Daily.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

Audi's electric ambitions just killed the TT and may cull the R8

Volkswagen AG's Audi will cease making the iconic TT coupe and replace it with a battery-powered model as the luxury brand accelerates an electric shift that may also see the next version of its flagship A8 sedan go emission-free.

Click here to read the entire story on Bloomberg

Tiffany's adapts to China's green demands

In China, this shifting focus towards sustainability is being driven by both government policy and consumer demands. The 13th Five-Year Plan put forward by the People's National Assembly of China highlighted the importance of growing domestic consumption sustainability, and a JD.com study in late 2018 noted a 71 percent increase in spending on green products in China, says Jing Daily.

Click here to read the entire story on Jing Daily

Musk's leaked email shows Tesla to make record deliveries in second quarter

Tesla Inc is on course to deliver a record number of cars in the second quarter, beating the 90,700 it sent to customers in the final quarter of last year, according to an internal email from Chief Executive Officer Elon Musk to staff, says Rueter.

Click here to read the entire story on Reuters

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.