

NEWS BRIEFS

Roberto Cavalli, fragrances, Harper's Bazaar and Bentley – News briefs

July 11, 2019

Roberto Cavalli's fall/winter 2018 ad campaign. Image credit: Roberto Cavalli

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

Dubai-based developer set to buy Roberto Cavalli

A Dubai-based property developer has won the contest to acquire luxury-fashion label Roberto Cavalli SpA in a deal worth around 160 million euros ($180 million), according to a person close to the deal, reports the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire article on the Wall Street Journal

In the Middle East, fragrances buck consumer spending decline

City Walk in Dubai is dotted with small perfume shops where women sample and purchase fragrances and the smoke of oud sticks permeates their hair. It's a tradition that has been passed down through generations in the Middle East, where three bottles of perfume are sold every second and fragrances make up 70 percent of the prestige beauty category, per Vogue Business.

Click here to read the entire article on Vogue Business

Hearst to debut Italian Harper's Bazaar

Harper's Bazaar is coming to Italy. The glossy publication, available in 44 countries, will make its Italian debut this fall. Launching as a digital-only title, the media company said it plans to unveil a printed edition in the second half of 2020, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Bentley's car of the future is so luxurious, it's self-chauffeured

For Bentley Motors Ltd., the future of luxury driving combines electric motors, artificial intelligence and the scent of moss and sandalwood, says Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.