

NEWS BRIEFS

Hong Kong, Bally, Amazon fires and real estate – News briefs

September 3, 2019

Bally's store in Milan. Image credit: Bally

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

From Dior to dried fish, Hong Kong retailers feel protest pain

Whether it's glitzy shops in Central or decades-old family businesses along the city's winding streets, retailers of all levels across Hong Kong these days find themselves struggling in much the same way, reports Bloomberg.

Click here to read the entire article on Bloomberg

Bally unveils flagship in Milan

The new Bally flagship in Milan is hard to miss, located on the corner of two of Milan's main streets luxury haven Via Montenapoleone and the busy, high-end Via Manzoni, across from the Armani Hotel and Emporio Armani megastore, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Is footwear funding the burning of the Amazon?

The satellite pictures convey the magnitude of ongoing fires in the Amazon and even residents of So Paulo, thousands of miles away, can describe the intensity of the heat. Fires in the Amazon rainforest are up more than 80 percent year-on-year, with half of them reportedly started in the last month. For many, the horrific scenes might seem a world away. And while the factors that led to the fires are complex, the footwear industry is partly responsible, says Vogue Business.

Click here to read the entire article on Vogue Business

These agents are going beyond the open house to market their luxury listings

With a real estate market with a glut of inventory, it takes more than an open house with cookies or cocktails to sell a property, per Forbes.

Click here to read the entire article on Forbes

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.