

NEWS BRIEFS

Tariffs, Harrods, Tokyo Fashion Week and luxury real estate News briefs

October 21, 2019

British brands are bracing for impacts from tariffs. Image credit: Harrods

By STAFF REPORTS

Please be aware the clippings below may require a paid subscription to the listed media outlet to read an article in full.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Today in luxury:

British luxury brands fight to keep US customers as tariffs hit

A group representing 250 U.K. luxury brands caught in the middle of a trade spat between the United States and the European Union is preparing to launch a charm offensive in New York, reports CNN.

Click here to read the entire article on CNN

Harrods opens men's space with brand names, not categories, dominating

Harrods is tearing up the men's department store map, getting rid of product categories and looking to showcase the brands and designers its clients are following on social media, per Women's Wear Daily.

Click here to read the entire article on Women's Wear Daily

Can Tokyo Fashion Week remain a significant player?

When seemingly every week is fashion week, how do you make your showcase essential in the seasonal race of buyers and press around the world? asks Vogue Business.

Click here to read the entire article on Vogue Business

Proceed with caution when relisting your luxury home for a higher price

Does a truly exceptional property warrant a big price bump in a soft market? Maybe, if the conditions are right, says Mansion Global.

Click here to read the entire article on Mansion Global

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.