

NEWS BRIEFS

Elsewhere: Interior design trends, changing face of luxury, business of rare and stylish men

December 30, 2019

In 2004, "Chanel No 5: The Film," directed by Baz Luhrmann, ushered in branded content. Source: FT.com. Image credit: Advertising Archive

By STAFF REPORTS

Elsewhere in luxury (subscriptions may be required):

The top 6 interior-design trends for 2020

Oval furniture is making sharp angles seem passe. The reign of white Carrara is giving way to many-colored marble. We canvassed over 100 dcor pros to bring you the design trends that are winning and waning.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Please click here to read the entire article on WSJ.com

How we spent it: the changing face of luxury

It's 25 years since Lucia van der Post launched the Financial Times' award-winning title. She charts the changes that have transformed the luxury landscape, and reflects on what we will buy next.

Please click here to read the entire article on FT.com

The business of rare: Why restaurants love investing in limited quantity items

Though restaurant trends come and go, one constant guests can rely on when dining out is that the appeal of vintage spirits and authentic ingredients is far more exciting than a current flash in the pan.

Please click here to read the entire article on Forbes.com

How the most stylish men of the year came courtesy of the small screen

If you haven't watched Succession, the Sky Atlantic blockbuster about a feuding family helmed by a media conglomerate megalomaniac, hunker down during this festive lull, turn the phone to airplane mode, lock the door and thank me when you emerge 12 hours later.

Please click here to read the entire article on telegraph.co.uk

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.