

NEWS BRIEFS

Elsewhere: Dow collapse, NYC economy could be ravaged, US workers and luxury response to virus

March 17, 2020

Bernard Arnault is the 2019 Luxury Personality of the Year. Image credit: LVMH

By LUXURY DAILY NEWS SERVICE

Elsewhere in luxury:

Dow falls nearly 3,000 points as virus fears spread

Market rout comes as Trump urges only small gatherings, San Francisco and France announce lockdowns

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Please click here to read the article on WSJ.com

N.Y.C.'s economy could be ravaged by coronavirus outbreak

With the closing of museums, Broadway theaters and restaurants, tourism is plunging, leaving New York facing mass layoffs and business failures.

Please click here to read the article on NYTimes.com

US workers brace as coronavirus ripples through real economy

Service industries that have driven jobs growth look among the most vulnerable

Please click here to read the article on FT.com

As LVMH pledges to mass produce hand sanitizer for hospitals, how the global luxury market is responding to the coronavirus

Alongside the devastating human cost, global brands are announcing major donations and initiatives to help fight the coronavirus

Please click here to read the article on Telegraph.co.uk