

NEWS BRIEFS

Lexus, Hublot, Aston Martin Lagonda, Mercedes-AMG, PETA and Prada

May 27, 2020

Hublot's newly opened flagship boutique in Tokyo's Ginza district. Image courtesy of Hublot

By LUXURY DAILY NEWS SERVICE

Luxury Daily's live news:

Japan's Lexus, in leg-up to dealers, turns to Widewail for online consumer review monitoring

Japanese automaker Lexus will deploy Widewail's reputation management and social media engagement platform for its dealers to monitor online customer reviews for the United States market.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Please click here to read the article

Swiss watch brand Hublot opens its largest flagship store worldwide in Tokyo

Swiss watchmaker Hublot May 26 opened its largest flagship store in the world in Tokyo's posh Ginza district in a gesture that acknowledges the power of its No. 1 consumer market.

Please click here to read the article

Andy Palmer out as Aston Martin Lagonda boss as Mercedes-AMG CEO Tobias Moers steps in

The incoming CEO has his work cut out: Save an embattled British automotive icon, already in trouble before the COVID-19 fallout.

Please click here to read the article

PETA urges Prada to drop accessories made with skins of wild animals

In its letter, PETA urges Prada to join Chanel, Ralph Lauren, Jil Sander and other brands and stop selling accessories made out of wild animals' skins.

Please click here to read the article

Employee experience should be at center of reopening plans

As luxury brands begin to plan office reopenings, employee experiences should be at the center of plans to attract top-drawer talent back into the workplace.

Please click here to read the article

© 2020 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.