In exchange for the snow, affluent guests can enjoy watching the annual American football championship game on a private yacht charter in the tropics. Magellan is offering several private jet itineraries for guests to choose from before setting sail on a private IYC yacht charter to a remote island of their choice.

Catch the game in style

Magellan itinerary options include, but are not limited to, super-mid size (8 passengers) or heavy (13 passengers) private jets from New York to Nassau or Chicago to Miami, starting at $50,000 and $58,000, respectively.

Onboard football-themed amenities include: elevated safety protocols, personalized service, comfortable and clean aircrafts, Magellan Jets preferred network and a 24/7 guest experience team.

Once guests have arrived at their desired destinations, they will board a private yacht charter courtesy of IYC where they can watch the game en route to a remote island vacation.

IYC recommends the following yachts: Silver Seas, available for charter in South Florida and the Bahamas, starting at $45,000 per week; Far From It, available for charter in the Caribbean islands, starting at $135,000 per week; Ocean Club, available for charter in the Caribbean islands, the Bahamas and Bermuda, starting at $190,000 per week.

In an October campaign, IYC highlighted the Bahamas as a top destination to spend the 2020 holiday season. The yacht charter firm encouraged affluent travelers to experience a variety of locations like the Bahamas and activities in an exclusive and safe environment by offering a selection of yachts at varying price points (see story).
