

NEWS BRIEFS

LVMH, Kenzo, Audi and Knight Frank

April 27, 2021

The new Kenzo Sport collection by Felipe Oliveira Baptista. Image credit: Kenzo

By SARAH RAMIREZ

Luxury Daily's live news for April 26:

LVMH debuts digital materials resale platform

French luxury goods conglomerate LVMH Mot Hennessy Louis Vuitton is launching its first online resale platform for "re-sourcing" high-quality materials from its fashion and leather goods houses.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Please click here to read the article

Kenzo's creative director departs after short stint

French fashion label Kenzo is going in a new direction, as Felipe Oliveira Baptista is set to depart the LVMH-owned house after two years as creative director.

Please click here to read the article

Audi, MLS debut new season of sports docu-series

Automaker Audi of America has partnered with Major League Soccer and sports media brand Bleacher Report for a second season of its documentary series.

Please click here to read the article

Super-prime sales remain resilient in 2020: Knight Frank

Global super-prime residential sales fell only 1 percent in 2020, as wealthy international buyers sought out properties in domestic markets, according to findings from Knight Frank.

Please click here to read the article