Baccarat Residences Brickell will be a waterfront tower standing where the Miami River meets the Biscayne Bay, offering affluents a combination of high-design, luxurious amenities and all the fittings of a glamorous lifestyle. With projected completion in 2024, the Baccarat property offers to be more than just a home to affluents, but an entire experience.

Meeting the Miami market

Baccarat's new residences in the Miami neighborhood of Brickell promises to offer residents a lifestyle of laid-back glamour and limitless luxury. Baccarat Residences Brickell is planned to be a 75-story glass tower.

The residential features include open-concept contemporary floor plans featuring one-, two-, three- and four-bedroom residences and penthouses, private elevator openings for each residence, energy-efficient sliding glass doors, private terraces, ten-foot-high ceilings, gourmet kitchens and more.

Residents will have access to several amenities including secluded private entrances, a clubroom with bar and billiards, catering kitchen and multimedia facilities, state-of-the-art fully equipped fitness center, Hammam spa, private screening room, business center, wine cellar and more.

Other services provided by Baccarat Hotels & Residences include a highly attentive concierge, luxury house car limousine service within a three-mile radius, 24-hour room service, childcare and more.

A private marina and planned riverside restaurant will invite residents to spend hours luxuriating in life by the water. This will also serve as a hub for superyachts and a private water taxi service.

The building is being developed by Jorge Perez's Related Group and Barry Sternlicht's SH Hotels & Resorts alongside the Baccarat brand.

In 2012, Baccarat announced its plans to create a new modern, luxury hotel brand, with its creators claiming it could set a new standard for exclusive hotel experiences.

Baccarat New York was created by Mr. Sternlicht in a partnership between Starwood Capital and Tribeca Associates (see story).
