Through its new American Express Premium Private Jet Program, Wheels Up is offering exclusive membership discounts and flight credits to Platinum Card members, in addition to the lifestyle benefits and experiences they can access as Wheels Up members. The program is also providing American Express Platinum Card members benefits through Wheels Up Marketplace Access for those wishing to fly without purchasing a membership from the aviation firm.

"American Express is deeply committed to delivering exceptional service to its card members and we share that commitment, we are thrilled our two brands are working together to welcome Platinum card members to Wheels Up," said Kenny Dichter, founder and CEO at Wheels Up, in a statement.

"We set a high bar for our members by delivering world-class safety and service on board our diverse fleet," he said. "We look forward to providing unparalleled travel and lifestyle experiences to American Express Platinum card members."

"With our mutual dedication to outstanding services and innovation, Wheels Up is a natural fit for our Platinum card members," said Rafael Mason, senior vice president of global premium products at American Express, in a statement. "We know our card members will appreciate the level of safety and service of the Wheels Up private jet experience."

Last week, Wheels Up announced it was adding to its member benefits through a new partnership with Landry's Inc, a multibrand dining and hospitality corporation.
