Through Oct. 14, members of the Marriott Bonvoy rewards program will be able to access global offers across the group's portfolio, which includes the luxury brands Ritz-Carlton and St. Regis. The "Wonders" are centered on several themes, including luxury, adventure, comfort, sophistication and discovery.

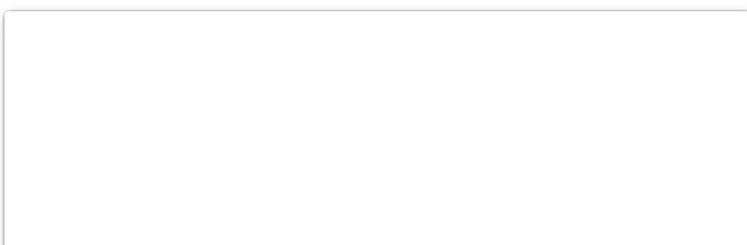

"We're excited to show appreciation for our loyal members through Week of Wonders, allowing travelers to reignite their spirit of discovery and unlock the power of travel with Marriott Bonvoy," said David Flueck, senior vice president at Marriott Bonvoy, in a statement.

"With these rich offers, members have more reasons to book their long-awaited dream vacation, cross off bucket-list items with terrific experiences or reward themselves with some much-needed luxury."

This is the second Week of Wonders

This month, Marriott officially added 20 new Autograph Collection all-inclusive resorts to its Bonvoy travel program, following the group's recent agreement with Sunwing Travel Group's hotel division, Blue Diamond Resorts (see story).

Other "Week of Wonders" promotions include discounts and gift card rewards for travelers who make purchases with luggage retailer Away or through Marriott Bonvoy boutiques.

For affluent travelers, the "Wonders of Luxury" offer provides guests booking a minimum of two-night stays up to $300 in folio credit for amenities such as spa services or dining during their visit. This is only available for Bonvoy members booking within the Edition, St. Regis and Ritz-Carlton portfolios.

Bonvoy members can also bid their points on exclusive experiences, such as a four-night stay at The Ritz-Carlton Abu Dhabi and VIP experience with the Mercedes-AMG Petronas F1 team.

In August, Marriott Bonvoy relaunched its Moments offerings, emphasizing one-of-a-kind experiences. Experience options are categorized based on different interest areas: sports, music, culinary, personal and professional development and arts and culture (see story).
