

NEWS BRIEFS

Day's wrap: Bottega Veneta, Ferragamo, Alexander McQueen, Mercedes, Proenza Schouler and NRF

November 10, 2021

Bottega Veneta famously ditched social media during Daniel Lee's tenure. Image credit: Bottega Veneta

By LUXURY DAILY NEWS SERVICE

Luxury Daily's live news for Nov. 10:

Daniel Lee steps down from Kering's Bottega Veneta

French luxury conglomerate Kering has confirmed that creative director Daniel Lee is departing Italian fashion house Bottega Veneta in a joint decision.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

Please click here to read the article

Ferragamo Q3 revenues climb across all channels, including retail

Italy's Salvatore Ferragamo has continued its upward trajectory in the third quarter of 2021, with revenues for the first nine months of the year up almost 34 percent to 84 million euro, or about $96.7 million at current exchange rates.

Please click here to read the article

Alexander McQueen supports youth arts education with new partnership

British fashion label Alexander McQueen is expanding its support of educational outreach programs to help foster diversity in the fashion industry.

Please click here to read the article

Mercedes, Proenza Schouler embrace sustainable style with capsule collection

German automaker Mercedes-Benz has enlisted New York-based fashion label Proenza Schouler for a sustainable capsule collection for its latest collaboration.

Please click here to read the article

NRF sues to review US COVID-19 vaccine mandate

The National Retail Federation has joined multiple trade organizations in a lawsuit against the federal government's mandate on COVID-19 vaccinations.

Please click here to read the article

Please click here to read the morning newsletter

© 2021 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.