

TRAVEL AND HOSPITALITY

Four Seasons invites guests to the mountains with winter experiences

November 17, 2021

Pool at Four Seasons Resort and Residences Vail. Image credit: Four Seasons

By LUXURY DAILY NEWS SERVICE

Hospitality group Four Seasons Hotels & Resorts is inviting ski aficionados and winter lovers to select properties in North America as part of its newly unveiled Mountain Collection.

Subscribe to Luxury Daily
Plus: Just released
State of Luxury 2019 Save $246 ▶

From elevated apres-ski experiences to relaxing fireside and regionally-inspired wellness treatments, the hospitality group is appealing to experiential travelers with new ways of enjoying the wintery months. Four Seasons is offering these experiences, and more, at its properties in Jackson Hole, Santa Fe, Vail and Whistler.

Warming up at Four Seasons

All four Mountain Collection resorts have created unique experiences celebrating the apres-ski tradition.

Four Seasons Resort and Residences Jackson Hole announced the return of Fahrenheit Forty-Seven this winter season. Named after the ideal temperature at which to serve Champagne, the dome-shaped bar will transform the pool deck into a winter scape.

Fahrenheit Forty-Seven will offer Mot & Chandon Imperial and Mot & Chandon Ros Imperial by the glass and by the bottle, plus cocktails featuring Mot & Chandon Ice Imperial.

A hot chocolate cart is also available daily from 3-6pm at the Jackson Hole property, where guests may choose five different types of specialty chocolate, from Valrhona 70 percent Guanaja and Valrhona 64 percent Manjari to classic milk chocolate.

For rejuvenation, Four Seasons Jackson Hole is introducing the Snow Melt Ritual in The Spa, launching on Jan. 1. The treatment begins with a soothing milk bath in a private spa suite.

The Terra Bar at Four Seasons Resort Rancho Encantado in Santa Fe is offering curated apres-ski experiences, including learning the art of mixology from beverage experts and how to create craft cocktails.

Guests can enjoy s'mores by the fire at Four Seasons Resort Rancho Encantado Santa Fe. Image credit: Four Seasons

Guests may indulge their senses with a warm, skin-smoothing brown sugar and bourbon-infused body scrub treatment at the spa at Four Seasons Rancho Encantado, followed by a shea butter application. Guests may finish the experience with a glass of bourbon and almond bourbon truffles fireside.

Four Seasons Resort and Residences Vail features fire pits on its Remedy terrace which look out at the mountains of Colorado.

Vail's spa is bringing back signature rituals and la carte treatments focusing on recovery, hydration, exfoliation and detoxifying while re-mineralizing the body.

For those looking for a warmer apres experience, Four Seasons Resort and Residences Whistler presents a hot chocolate program, available at the newly renovated Braidwood Tavern.

The spa at Whistler introduces its signature "Peak to Feet" package, which begins with a sports recovery massage, followed by a scalp massage. To complete the treatment, the spa team prepares an alpine mint foot massage.

Hospitality groups are ramping up for the holiday and winter season, introducing new offerings to make guests as comfortable as possible.

Auberge Hotels & Resorts' Commodore Perry Estate unveiled new holiday experiences including the traditional mansion lighting, gifts from Santa on Christmas Day and more. Throughout the month of December, guests visiting the Austin, Texas property can participate in several holiday events, from indulgent to immersive, in spreading the season cheer (see story).